Dear Mr. Davidson:

I thoroughly enjoyed your presentation at the IAAP Conference in San Antonio last week. Found it filled with lots of practical tips and advice that I personally could use during the course of my day.

Also, I agreed with your philosophy on where we are within the "Information Age" and how to reside comfortably within it until our efforts get "ironed out". (Hope this happens before I leave this world). ☺

I am very anxious to receive a copy of your tape. There is a Director here at our company who could benefit greatly from it. I have already spoken to him regarding how beneficial your presentation was to me, and have gotten him to consent to listening to the tape in his car on the way to work one morning. Also, if you would provide me with another copy of the wallet card you passed out during the conference, I would give that to him too.

Sincerely,

P.S. I have not yet run across the quote I mentioned to you on Katherine Hepburn. As promised, I will forward to you when I do.
