Dear Jeff,

Your ability to relate to people, and provide value and insights, really impressed me. In my business, I work with high performers from every type of background. I have spoken many times within my field at charitable events, on subjects related to work-life mission.

It's a rare occasion to attend workshops like the one featuring you -- we all get so busy. When I do attend, I like to be moved, challenged, and fed. We all need energy, and motivation certainly is not permanent.

When you spoke not only about business secrets, balance, and other issues, it gelled nicely. Your emphasis on integrity during a time of cutthroat marketing really connected and your speech confirmed my core beliefs. At the same time you challenged me.

I hope people will continue to support your cause, your books, and your giving spirit.

Sincerely,

John M. O'Connor
