Dear Mr. Davidson:

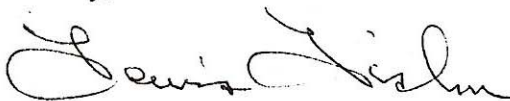

Thank you so much for the excellent session you offered us at the Carolina Club. I spoke with persons from the club to tell them how much I appreciated the time with you and the information you shared with me. One comment I made that they endorsed was, "He certainly knows what he is talking about."

In addition to the information, your talk had motivated me to pursue a book I had been trying to finish. I was mostly interested in learning about agents and publishers for fiction but your example is leading me to complete the "self-help" book I have at hand.

Obviously I think it is a completely new approach (Don't we all.) and I intend to work at it. The framework and several chapters are done and I need to complete the whole book. That's my way of doing it rather than submitting a work-in-progress. I feel more comfortable completing the book.

Should something good develop from this, I certainly let you know along with the note expressing my thanks to you.

Sincerely,
