Dear Jeff,

Thank you very much for the great information that you shared with the group at the QIC Learning. You did an excellent job summing up the right steps, the right frame of mind and the right attitude that authors need to have to create good content easily and effectively.

I have co-authored three books and many articles and presentations and have always been stressed out creating the content. I wish I had access to your knowledge and insights way back in 2000 when I first embarked on the path to become an author.

I am now going to review the materials and refocus and rededicate myself to becoming a better author and "Leveraging your Products and Written Works all Over the Internet and Beyond".

Keep up the good work and keep touching the lives of others and helping people along their journey too.

Sincerely,
